

Julia Strau

Julia Strau is Head of Group Regulatory Affairs in Raiffeisen Bank International AG, which is one of Austria's leading corporate and investment banks and operates as a universal bank in 12 Central and Eastern European markets. With more than ten years of experience in Regulatory Affairs, her activities comprise analysing relevant regulatory initiatives on local, EU and international level and safeguarding their implementation. She also serves as Single Point of Contact towards European and local banking supervision authorities. Contributing to a common supervisory culture is a special concern for her as uncertainty caused by diverging rules can take much of the resources in supervised entities that could otherwise be used to improve customer experience. In her previous position in the European Parliament (EP), she was responsible for aligning the EP's position, most importantly on the Basel III implementation, with the Co-Legislator. In this position, she has gained a deep knowledge of the EU legislation process and a good sense of "what is feasible" and what not, in order to successfully negotiate European regulations. An important part of her job was stakeholder management.
