

Jekaterina Govina

---

Jekaterina Govina is a distinguished Lithuanian legal and financial expert with a strong background in fintech, compliance, and anti-money laundering (AML) initiatives. Holding a Master of Laws from Mykolo Romerio University and a Postgraduate Diploma from Oxford Said Business School, Jekaterina has dedicated her career to driving innovation and regulatory excellence in the financial sector.

Currently, Jekaterina is the Co-founder and Head of Partnerships at AMLYZE, an AML software company that provides financial institutions with solutions to stay compliant with evolving regulations. She also serves as a Partner at Response Legal, where she leverages her extensive legal expertise to support clients in navigating complex regulatory landscapes. In addition, she is the Chairwoman of the Compliance Professionals Association, leading efforts to enhance compliance culture within the fintech industry across the European Union, and the Co-founder and Director of INWEST, an organization focused on empowering women through financial education and promoting financial independence.

Jekaterina's career includes significant roles at the Bank of Lithuania, where she served as the Executive Director of the Supervision Service. In this role, she was responsible for prudential and business conduct supervision of the Lithuanian financial market and represented the Bank in various international forums..

Beyond her executive roles, Jekaterina is a passionate educator, lecturing on fintech at Kaunas Technology University and Vilnius Technology University. Her contributions to the industry have been recognized through numerous awards, including being named among the top women in fintech and as a leader in Lithuanian technology.