

Dr Jesper Lau Hansen worked as a lawyer before joining the University of Copenhagen, where he has been a professor since 2003.

He works primarily with company law and the regulation of financial markets and securities trading. He is a member of various editorial boards.

He was a member of the Reflection Group on the Future of EU Company Law and has been an academic member of the Securities and Markets Stakeholder Group since 2011, where he now serves as chair.