

Founded in March 2004, Nedcommunity is the first Italian association dedicated to enhancing, supporting, and developing the role of non-executive directors and supervisory board members. The Association promotes dialogue on corporate governance issues through communities, research, collaborative working groups, and training programs focused on relevant topics at both the domestic and international levels.

Its members include non-executive and independent directors, as well as members of statutory audit and supervisory boards serving on the boards of listed companies, corporate groups, and large privately held companies. The Association is also open to researchers, experts, and young professionals with an interest in corporate governance. As of May 2026, Nedcommunity counts 872 members.
